

Moreland Altobelli (MA) is pleased to announce the completion of an elevated pedestrian walkway serving the visitors of downtown Gainesville's business, civic and cultural attractions.

Speaking – Danny Dunagan, Mayor of Gainesville, GA

MA provided bridge and site design, geotechnical investigation, survey and construction management services as lead consultant for the Gainesville Redevelopment Authority and City of Gainesville.

The new span over Jesse Jewell Parkway is a highly visible part of the city's overall enhancement focus. Design experts worked closely with the Redevelopment Authority to create an architecturally distinctive, yet functional, structure to complement other planned aesthetic improvements.

The new span over Jesse Jewell Parkway is a highly visible part of the city's overall enhancement focus. Design experts worked closely with the Redevelopment Authority to create an architecturally distinctive, yet functional, structure to complement other planned aesthetic improvements.

Arched beams and specially crafted fence work were employed to produce a curved profile. The accompanying low-intensity lighting adds to the unique visual appeal, creating a soaring appearance to those approaching the bridge by automobile.

Versatile concrete materials were selected to better accommodate the varied design requirements while lowering the city's ongoing maintenance costs. The entire $3 million project was completed on time and within budget.

During the next 10 years, city leaders will continue to implement a strategic plan to attract new investments and redevelopment interests into areas now served by the pedestrian bridge

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

We at Moreland Altobelli are grateful to the leaders of the City of Gainesville for allowing us to complete this project. We wish the city much success in its worthwhile efforts to invigorate the Georgia Mountain Center area and all of downtown. We trust this pedestrian crossing will be a great addition to these new projects for years to come.
