

I-285 and Ashford Dunwoody Road Diverging Diamond Interchange

As we look forward, we want to continue our work with the many counties, cities, CIDs and states as well as our partners to deliver the types of services these communities and citizens expect and deserve. We believe the economy is improving and we look forward to working with our many partners in 2014. Thanks to our leadership team and all the dedicated employees at MA.

I-85 and Pleasant Hill Road Diverging Diamond Interchange

This past year Moreland Altobelli (MA) celebrated 26 years in business. We have been blessed to start a small business and become one of the largest family-owned engineering firms in the state of Georgia. We have offices all across Georgia, one in Tennessee and one in South Carolina.

MA has been successful because of our leadership, work ethic and dedicated employees. Over the years we have been recognized with many awards. This year we were nationally recognized with the Georgia Department of Transportation (GDOT) and The Perimeter CID for the "Ahead of Schedule Small Projects" for the I-285 & Ashford-Dunwoody Diverging Diamond Interchange by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials.

MA also provided project management for Gwinnett County and Gwinnett Place CID on the newest diverging diamond interchange at I-85 & Pleasant Hill Road.

We thank our partners with whom we have worked and give them credit for their participation in supplying good projects. We recognize it takes a team effort as the process has gotten more and more complicated to move projects forward.

Let's have a great 2014.

Have a happy and prosperous new year!
